Child Care & Family Support

Angels' Place
Nurturing Two Generations

High-quality early childhood education shouldn't come at a high price.

There are challenges, especially child care issues, associated with being a parent, low-income, and a full-time student. In 2015, over 57,000 babies were born to single mothers in the state of Pennsylvania.¹ Additionally, less than half of teen mothers receive a high school diploma by the age of 22.² Without adequate support, these young parents are likely to become trapped in a cycle of poverty driven by low-paying jobs and financial dependency.

Parent's Pledge For Success

To fully develop their talents, enrolled student parents must be dedicated to service and excellence. We ask parents in our program to pursue exemplary citizenship and scholarship by committing to:

- Attend classes regularly and maintain passing grades.
- Give two volunteer service hours each week to Angels' Place.
- Participate weekly in on-site parenting education.
- Join in fundraising activities to support the program.

Education & Support Services

Complementing formal academic programming, Angels' Place encourages the growth and development of student parents and their children.

Early Childhood Education

Opportunities for creative self-expression and active play combined with developmentally appropriate curricula greatly improve school readiness. This builds a solid foundation for a child's lifetime of learning.

Child Care

Qualified, caring staff provide safe, flexible child care in a stimulating setting with complete nutrition programming Monday through Friday, year round.

Individual Support & Educational Counseling

Through implementing our comprehensive family service model, both parent and child become equipped with the tools to become self-sufficient and lifelong learners.

Career Planning

Mentoring and self-assessment enable students to gain a greater understanding of the job market and make informed choices about academic plans and career opportunities.

Parenting Development

Classes on parenting, nutrition, health, safety, finances, legal rights, and other life skills help families achieve success.

Practical Needs

Adult and children's clothing as well as other basics are secured for families in need.
